Margaret and Ferris Romaine had a “simple” wedding when they tied the knot on Nov. 24, 1946, in Morgan City, Louisiana. So simple that apparently, nobody thought to bring a camera to the wedding.

That’s why 70 years after that “simple” wedding, the couple spiffed up for a professional photographer and finally got the wedding pictures they never had.

Margaret Romaine said activities like walking gave both her and her husband time to think and led to the good health that has kept them together for seven decades. She also credits her husband’s help around the house with a happy marriage. “He washes and irons own clothes and he cooks,” she said of Ferris.
